Activity 7: Eisenhower Matrix

Write down all your assignments, projects, and tasks (work and personal) that need to be done this week/month/year. Use the template below, or draw your own 2x2 grid and label each section:

- Top-left: Important and urgent
- Top-right: Important but not urgent
- Bottom-left: Not important but urgent
- Bottom-right: Not important and not urgent

Sort your tasks
Place each task into the correct section based on its urgency and importance. If a task feels challenging to categorize, think about the consequences of not doing it soon, or at all.

Review and plan
1. Identify tasks in the Important and urgent box to tackle first.
2. Schedule time for tasks in the Important but not urgent box over the next few days.
3. Delegate or ask for help with tasks in the Not important but urgent box if possible.
4. Consider removing tasks in the Not important and not urgent box from your to-do list altogether.

	Urgent	Not Urgent
Important
Not Important
